MORSE ON WARPATH

Turns About at Liverpool and Sails Back.

PANIC SEIZES HIS ENEMIES

Friends Predict Scandal Will Be Bared Which Will Drag Down Many Financiers—Battle May Be Fought Before the Grand Jury. Apprehension Is General.

New York, Feb. 8.—The report that Charles W. Morse is on his way back to New York, having sailed this afternoon on the Etruria, has given the financial world the biggest sensation it has had in months.

Morse's arrival, it is hinted, will be followed by an upheaval beside which even the recent market crash will pale into insignificance. Morse is coming back to fight, his friends say.

What this means has caused certain financiers to shudder. If Morse wants to tell everything he knows to a Federal grand jury, it is more than hinted the biggest financial scandal of years may be given an airing.

Angered by Slurs. Among Morse's friends it is broadly hinted that the information called him that he is wanted as a witness before the grand jury was the thing that influenced him to an immediate return, although his health demanded a rest.

Slurs cast at him since his departure have angered Morse, it is said. He is prepared for a fight to a finish with his enemies. If the fight is to be waged in Federal criminal proceedings, Morse's friends openly say he will not be the only one hurt.

A complete investigation of his banking system and promoting methods is what is before the grand jury.

"When Morse gets back and starts to really fight there may be a few other financiers who may find it convenient to take trips abroad. I doubt if they will return as speedily as he has done," was the way one friend of the deposed "ice king" sized the situation up to-night.

Not Deserted by Friends. The words echo the sentiment of all of Morse's friends. He still has many, despite financial troubles in which he is involved.

To say a semi-panic exists in certain quarters is not stating the case too strong. The financial world, which was quick to say, when it learned of Morse's departure, that he had fled and would probably never return, now wishes it had not talked so hastily.

Even in circles where any revelations Morse can make threaten no danger to individuals, there is keen dread lest the threatened scandal should give business generally a set-back it will take months to get over. The lesson of recent revelations of illegal and dishonest practices—such as the insurance scandal and traction investigation—has not been forgotten.

Morse's fighting abilities are well known. There are few financiers in New York who have not met Morse in the arena in the battles his numerous enterprises necessitated. With the acknowledgment given Morse he now has no reason to shield any one.

Men deeply indebted to him have turned on him when they thought he was safely out of the way. If Morse is vengeful when he arrives, it is pointed out, he will be able to make things decidedly interesting for these men.

In self-defense, it is also stated, Morse is bound to fight hard. His enemies have declared they propose to drive him out of New York for good. This means a battle without quarter.

If Morse fails completely, it is hinted, he will not fall alone. It is the danger of a big crash that has startled financial circles.

Stimson Shields His Character. United States District Attorney Stimson to-day added to the score of Morse's enemies by giving an interview in which he mildly defended the man.

"Whenever a man is under investigation," Stimson said, "and criminal indictments are possible, it is not right to have a false atmosphere created about him. It is my duty to protect him from that atmosphere. That is what I am seeking to do."

Stimson's reference to a "false atmosphere" is what has caused the scare. It is presumed that the "come back" message which was sent to Morse by his counsel at the instance of United States District Attorney Stimson was among those delivered to him upon his arrival at Liverpool.

Hard Fight Is Assured.

That Morse will have a hard fight, however, is freely admitted. Even certain friends admit his affairs are involved. The hunt for his property, to attach under the suit now pending against him, is still going on, although little besides his real estate has been found to levy against. But with Morse's return, efforts will be made to make him give an accounting of wealth recently his.

From the moment he lands, it is hinted, Morse will be kept under constant surveillance. Even if there are no criminal proceedings, the fight he will have in civil courts is one before which an ordinary man might quail.

RECEIVER FOR TOY FIRM.

Sixteen Plants Put Under Operation of One Man by Court.

New York, Feb. 8.—The appointment of Nicholas H. Colwell as receiver of the Hardware & Woodenware Manufacturing Company, which owns and operates sixteen hardware and toy manufacturing plants in Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio, and Missouri, was announced to-day.

Judge Martin, of the United States Circuit Court, made up appointment on a bill in equity filed by counsel for Orrville R. Noble and Ralph B. Cooley, of Granville, Mass., who are holders of grants of the corporation. The company took over the property and business of the National Novelty Corporation last year, and is capitalized at $3,750,000. Counsel for the receiver said to-day that its assets are $3,500,000 and liabilities $1,100,000.

The company's embarrassment, he said, was due to the contraction of the bank credits during the recent financial stress. A plan for resuming business is under consideration.

ASSAIL "HAM" LEWIS

Attorneys Use Sharp Words in Mrs. McDonald Case.

WILD SCENES IN COURTROOM

Former Representative Accused of "Bribing Witnesses and Subornation of Perjury"—Woman Who Killed Young Man Called Vampire by the Prosecuting Attorney.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—In scenes unprecedented in Chicago courts for violence of denunciation, arguments of the first of the opposing counsel closed late this afternoon in the trial of Mrs. Dora McDonald for the death of Webster Guerin.

By State's Attorney Day, Mrs. McDonald, who sat pale and trembling through his speech, was denounced as a "vampire who fastened her fangs in the tender sixteen-year-old youth until, when her victim, in the strength of his manhood, was about to escape her unholy clutches, in jealous and unnatural rage, she sent his soul into eternity as the climax of the blight she put upon his life."

Her defenders, one of whom is Col. James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic candidate for nomination for governor, and the other, Patrick O'Donnell, former public administrator, were accused of "bribing witnesses, subornation of perjury, and despicable shyster methods."

Shakes Fist in His Face. When O'Donnell declared Assistant State's Attorney Day owed his position to Col. Lewis, from "whose hand he fed," Day rushed at O'Donnell, and shaking his fist in his face, blazed:

"You're a falsifier. You dare not make that assertion to me outside of this room. I was put here to prosecute such men as you."

Before the arguments of the first speakers on both sides were ended each had charged the other with using felonious methods in the prosecution of the case, and witnesses and the good names of living and dead participants in the tragedy were besmirched.

The lawyers' arguments will be finished by Tuesday, unless Mrs. McDonald's illness interferes. The death penalty has been waived by the State, which asks a sentence of imprisonment. Mrs. McDonald is buoyed up by the hope that she will be acquitted and may spend a part of the millions left her by "Mike" McDonald, Chicago's late gambler king, in a pilgrimage to Jerusalem.

VASSAR ALUMNAE PROTESTS.

Meeting at Delmonico's Resolves Into Indignation Session.

New York, Feb. 8.—The annual luncheon of the Vassar Alumnae Association, held at Delmonico's to-day, resolved itself into an indignation meeting, at which it was decided to use every means within the association's power to prevent the location of the present house of refuge on a site less than four miles from the college grounds.

Strong resolutions on the subject were passed. Addresses were made at the luncheon by Hamilton W. Mahis and Prof. William Milligan Sloan, of Columbia. These officers were elected: President, Mrs. William Reynolds Brown, of New York; secretary, Miss Alice Howland, of Hope, R. I.; and treasurer, Miss Turner, of Philadelphia.

PRODIGY'S CONCERT A SUCCESS

Master Elias Breeskin, Aged Twelve, Gives Violin Exhibition.

Displays Wonderful Skill at the Raleigh Before the Council of Jewish Women.

A concert of rare merit was given at the Raleigh Thursday afternoon under the auspices of the Council of Jewish Women, and through the efforts of Mrs. Bertha B. Frank.

The artist was Master Elias Breeskin, a Russian violinist, and a prodigy, whose age is twelve years.

This musical treat was in the nature of a benefit for Master Breeskin, whose talents are a marvel in the world of music.

This child wonder executed the most difficult numbers with wonderful skill and technique. The affair proved a magnificent success, the hall being filled to its capacity, and the auditors were aroused to the highest pitch of enthusiasm.

The other numbers on the programme, which elicited unlimited praise, were vocal selections by Mrs. W. H. Shur-Cliff, who sang at her best, with Mr. E. H. Droop at the piano; Mme. Marie von Unscheldt, a masterful rendition of Liszt's Rhapsody No. 14 and encore. The Washington String Quartet opened the programme with well rendered selections.

Master Breeskin was the recipient of a bouquet of carnations, sent him by Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt from the White House.

The committee in charge of the affair follows: Mrs. B. B. Frank, chairman; Mrs. D. J. Kaufman, Mrs. I. Eppstein, Mrs. A. Brylawski, Mrs. R. B. Behrend, Mrs. M. Hano, Mrs. Charles Goldsmith, Mrs. M. J. Rosenau, Mr. D. J. Kaufman ably assisted the ladies.

BLACK HAND CAPTAIN

Victim of Duel Identified as Camelia La Rosa.

DIES IN NEW YORK HOSPITAL

Recognized by Baltimore Detective as Italian Lawbreaker with Evil Record in Baltimore and Pittsburgh. Shot Down in Street by Unknown Antagonist—Refused to Tell.

New York, Feb. 8.—Detective William Atkinson, of the Baltimore (Md.) central office, to-day identified Tony Calcegro, the Italian blackmailer, who was fatally wounded with buckshot by an unknown antagonist, believed to have been another blackmailer, with whom he had quarreled, as Camelia La Rosa, a Black Hand captain, with many exploits to his credit both in and around Baltimore and Pittsburgh.

La Rosa died at Harlem Hospital, lingering from Monday night, when he was shot, until Friday, Atkinson, after making a positive identification to-night, hurried back to Baltimore with the news.

Career in New York.

Lieut. Petrosini, of the Black Hand squad here, believes La Rosa was engaged in Black Hand schemes among the Italians of upper New York for a long time before the killing. He was ostensibly a peaceful barber by occupation, with a shop at 319 East 14th street. Little of his time was spent at barbering, Petrosini found out, except when he was waiting while some of his schemes were developing.

At 2 o'clock in the morning last Monday a fusillade of shots rang out in the Italian quarter around First avenue and 10th street. A crowd of excited Italians quickly gathered at 10th street and First avenue, where the shots had been fired.

Wounded Man Maintains Secrecy. There the reserves from the East 10th street station found La Rosa, or Calcegro, writhing on the pavement with twenty buckshot in his abdomen. All the police could learn was that a duel at close range between Calcegro and some opponent had taken place, in which the opponent had escaped with injuries slight enough to enable him to get away undiscovered.

Calcegro was questioned by the police while an ambulance from the Harlem Hospital was clattering to the scene. But neither he nor any of the Italians in the crowd could be persuaded to throw any light on the cause of the shooting.

Calcegro lingered at the hospital, no hope for his recovery being held out from the beginning. He refused, nevertheless, to denounce his assailant, and on Friday he died.

Detective Atkinson thought he recognized the Black Hand captain, La Rosa, from the description given in the papers, and came on here to-day. La Rosa was only twenty-seven.

Funeral of R. P. A. Denham. Funeral services for Robert P. A. Denham, confidential bookkeeper for the George W. Knox Express Company, who died Friday, will take place to-morrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. Interment will be private.

AGED AUTHOR TO WED.

New York, Feb. 8.—A license to marry was issued to-day at the city hall to Franklin Carter, former president of Williams College, and Mrs. Elizabeth Sabin Leake, of Williamstown.

Dr. Carter described himself as a professor at New Haven. He has lectured on theism at Yale University since his retirement from the presidency of Williams in 1901. Dr. Carter gave his age as seventy and Mrs. Leake as sixty-eight.

Mrs. Leake is a sister of Charles D. Sabin, of 175 West Fifty-eighth street. She is the widow of Franklin Leake. Dr. Carter is a widower. His first wife was Sarah Leavenworth Kingsbury, of Waterbury, Conn., whom he married in 1863.

Dr. Carter is widely known in educational circles and is a member of many learned societies. He is the author of numerous magazine and newspaper articles. He is also the author of a life of Mark Hopkins, the distinguished president of Williams, and the editor of an edition of Goethe. He is a member of the University Club.

SEEKS TAXES ON "OLEO."

Government Sues Pittsburg Manufacturer for $16,000.

Pittsburg, Feb. 8.—Suit to recover over $16,000 taxes alleged to be due for manufacturing oleomargarine has been entered against John Vohr, of this city, by the United States.

The suit is the first of its kind in this district. It is charged that Vohr, to prevent payment of the tax, transferred his property to his wife, Bessie Vohr, and Fred de Arment. The government asks that this sale be set aside.

Vohr was convicted of manufacturing oleomargarine without a license and sentenced to pay $500 fine and serve eighteen months in the workhouse. An appeal to the United States Court of Appeals has stayed the sentence.

CORTELYOU IN NEW OFFICE.

Occupies Official Quarters in New York Custom-house.

It was also the first time he had been in the new building. Custom-house business was the sole object of his trip to this city, and he did not visit the treasury or transact any business in relation to the banking and monetary situation.

HARBOR IS ICEBOUND

Conditions Around New York Growing Worse Hourly.

FERRYBOATS ARE TIED UP

Floes Interfere with All Side-wheelers, and Even the Screw Boats Have Trouble—Pontoon of Bridge at Lackawanna Railroad Ferry Springs Alike, Nearly Collapsing.

New York, Feb. 8.—Instead of improving, the icebound conditions of the harbor are growing worse, and to-night it is predicted that if the weather does not moderate within a day or two, navigation for all except the larger craft will be stopped.

The ice blocks are larger than have been seen in the waters about New York for years, and pilots are refusing to run the risk of taking their vessels between them.

The screw boats have fared better than the side-wheel companions, which have nearly all given up temporarily, being newer and stronger and having their motive power far enough under water to clear all but the deepest ice.

Ferries Are Tied Up.

In the worst of the fogs to-day many of the older ferries did not risk passage, and for hours the boats of the Union Ferry Company were withdrawn from service entirely. The Hamilton Avenue and South Ferry lines to Brooklyn had boats caught in midstream, with the passengers and teams, for more than three hours. The ebbing tide finally released them. From twenty-five to forty minutes behind schedule was the experience of most of the lines.

An accident that threatened to put the Barclay street ferry of the Lackawanna Railroad out of business for some hours, happened earlier in the day. Weakened by the pack ice which was jammed into the slip by the tide and passing boats, the pontoon supporting the bridge sprung a leak.

Ferried Bridge Would Sink.

The water rushed into the supporting air chamber, and it soon became apparent that unless something was done both pontoon and bridge would sink. The Emma was then coming into the slip.

As soon as the passengers were discharged the boat was run under the bridge, lifting it. The boat was tied in position and the pumps on the dock started clearing out the water which had come into the hollow support. It was several hours before the slip could be used.

BURIAL OF MR. PINCHOT.

Funeral Will Be Held To-day from St. Job's Episcopal Church.

Funeral services for James W. Pinchot will be conducted from St. John's Episcopal Church this afternoon, at 3 o'clock, by Rev. Roland Cotton Smith, pastor of the church, and the Right Rev. Henry Y. Satterlee, Bishop of Washington. Interment will be private in Rock Creek Cemetery.

The pallbearers will be Secretary Root, Secretary Wilson, Baron von Sternburg, Prof. John L. Weir, Dr. R. S. Stearns, Gen. Gillespie, and Col. Archibald Hopkins.
